Historic Presentation Edition Gold and Silver 5 Kilogram Coins Honoring PAUL MCCARTNEY from The Royal Mint

Presented in this exciting auction are some of the rarest and most inspiring coins to emerge from The Royal Mint in modern times. They were designed and produced with care and precision to celebrate a true icon of music and pop culture: Paul McCartney.

Hand-crafted in massive 5 kilogram formats, these Presentation Edition gold and silver coins deliver an incredible visual appeal that is only matched by their rarity. Just one gold and four silver pieces are available for collectors, and they can be acquired exclusively through this auction.

The gold 5 kilogram piece is a bespoke creation that represents the largest gold Proof coin produced as part of The Royal Mint's Music Legends series. It took over 250 hours to make, including three days of hand polishing, and was signed by Paul during his 2024 Got Back tour in Paris, France. Like Paul himself, it is a truly unique and inspiring treasure.

Only four of the silver 5 kilogram pieces exist in this Presentation format for collectors, excluding a fifth example—Coin #1—that was gifted to Paul himself. Offered here are coins #2 through #5, which can rightly be called the “fab four” of modern British numismatics. Like the gold counterpart, these silver coins are the largest silver Proof coins in the Music Legends series and reflect the first time Paul has been honored on a British coin.

Each coin is accompanied by a certificate of authenticity signed by Paul himself and represents a crowning jewel for a world-class collection of British coinage or music memorabilia. Additionally, Paul will be donating a percentage of the revenue from this auction to charity which means that bidders will not only acquire an historic keepsake but will also contribute to a good cause.

PAUL MCCARTNEY

Paul McCartney is an iconic British musician, singer, songwriter, and composer who is known as a member of The Beatles, one of the most influential and successful bands in music history. Acclaimed for his melodic bass playing, versatile vocal range, and prolific songwriting, McCartney's influence spans generations. Quite simply, Paul is either your favorite musician or he is your favorite musician's favorite musician.

He was born on June 18, 1942, to James and Mary McCartney and had a relatively normal upbringing in post-war Liverpool, England. His father was a jazz musician and cotton salesman, while his mother was a nurse. McCartney's early exposure to music came from his father, who played the piano and encouraged Paul to explore different instruments. McCartney showed an early talent for music, teaching himself to play guitar, piano, and trumpet, and he took inspiration from early rock and roll pioneers like Elvis Presley, Buddy Holly, and Little Richard. His left-handedness led him to develop a unique playing style, which became one of his defining characteristics as a bassist and guitarist.

In 1957, at age 15, he met John Lennon at a church festival in Liverpool and impressed him with his musical abilities. Shortly after, McCartney joined Lennon's existing band, The Quarry Men, which eventually evolved into The Beatles. By the late 1950s, McCartney, Lennon, George Harrison, and other early bandmates were honing their craft by playing small gigs around Liverpool and Hamburg, Germany, setting the stage for their eventual global success.

As a member of The Beatles, McCartney played bass guitar and shared lead vocal and songwriting duties with John Lennon, forming one of the most iconic songwriting partnerships of all time. Together, they wrote numerous classic hits such as Hey Jude, Let It Be, Yesterday, and Eleanor Rigby.

After The Beatles disbanded in 1970, McCartney launched a highly successful solo career and formed the band Wings with his late wife, Linda McCartney. His post-Beatles career includes numerous chart-topping albums and hits like Band on the Run, Live and Let Die, and Maybe I'm Amazed.

Throughout his seven-decade career, McCartney has won countless awards, including multiple GRAMMY® Awards and a knighthood from Queen Elizabeth II in 1997 for his contributions to music. Beyond his music, Paul is a dedicated proponent of environmental issues and animal-rights issues. In June 2009, he launched Meat Free Mondays to demonstrate how giving up meat just one day each week can help to “reduce your environmental impact, save money and live a healthier life”. He has also supported campaigns like “Save the Arctic” and has called for the ban of Chinese wet markets due to their impact on health and animal welfare. Through these efforts, Paul McCartney continues to leverage his influence to support a wide range of charitable causes, demonstrating a longstanding commitment to philanthropy and social responsibility.

The Presentation Edition Gold and Silver 5 Kilogram Paul McCartney Coins

While Paul McCartney has been universally lauded for his contributions to music and pop culture over the past half-century, this is remarkably the very first time he has been celebrated on a coin from The Royal Mint. Throughout the process, The Royal Mint worked directly with Paul McCartney's production company MPL Communications and with Paul himself, to develop an exceptional commemorative that honors his indelible impact on society.

The reverse was designed by Deborah Osborne and Andrew Ross of the London-based design consultancy Osborne Ross with input from Paul McCartney himself. The focal point of the reverse design is his iconic "Magic Piano"; an upright by the British manufacturer Alfred Knight, Ltd. a company founded in the 1930s. In 1966, Paul commissioned BEV Design Collective (Douglas Binder, Dudley Edwards and David Vaughan) to paint the piano in psychedelic colors after seeing their work on a sports car owned by friend Tara Browne. The piano was completed in December 1966 and has been his inseparable musical companion ever since.

While the piano's iconic psychedelic artwork has become a symbol of the 1960s era, the Magic Piano also played a critical role in shaping pop music. It was used by Paul to compose canonical tunes such as Getting Better and others, and it was featured in The Beatles' popular film Magical Mystery Tour, released in December 1967. The Royal Mint's talented artists expertly applied transparent resin infill to bring the piano's vibrant colors to life on this spectacular coin. Three keys on the piano are also etched as if they are being played; these keys comprise the notes of a D minor chord: D, F, and A.

In addition to the Magic Piano, the coin depicts the top portion, or "headstock", of Paul's iconic bass guitar made by Höfner. Given the nickname the "Violin Bass" for its body shape that is similar to that instrument, Paul first used this bass in 1961 and it became his go-to instrument throughout much of the 1960s. It appeared in many of The Beatles' earliest appearances, performances, and recordings such as their time at the Cavern Club in Liverpool and their first recordings at Abbey Road Studios. He owned two models of this bass one from 1961 and 1963; the 1961 model was eventually stolen in 1972 and wasn't recovered until 2024. Paul still uses the Höfner bass today in live performances, making it one of the longest continuing artist-instrument relationships in rock history. It remains inextricably associated with Paul and his entire musical legacy, and it is fitting that it has been immortalized on this historic coin. Also featured on the headstock is the logo of Paul's post-Beatles band Wings, which achieved tremendous commercial and critical success throughout the 1970s and 1980s.

Complementing the innovative reverse is a truly regal portrait of His Majesty King Charles III on the obverse, designed by renowned British sculptor Martin Jennings. In keeping with tradition, the King's portrait faces to the left, the opposite direction of Queen Elizabeth II on her coinage, and it has been personally approved by His Majesty. The Latin inscription surrounding the effigy reads "• CHARLES III • D • G • REX • F • D • 2500 POUNDS • 2024" which translates to "Charles III, by the Grace of God, King, Defender of the Faith" alongside the date and denomination. The expansive 175 mm large format of these Presentation coins allows the exceptional detail of the portrait to be fully appreciated. The portrait is rendered with captivating realism and serves as the perfect counterpart to the more abstract reverse graphics.

Each of these historic commemoratives are housed in a bespoke wooden case and is accompanied by a serialized Certificate of Authenticity. The Certificates for the silver examples are hand-signed by Paul, while the gold piece bears Paul's signature directly on the coin as well as on the Certificate. With only one gold and four silver coins available, they are sure to garner fierce bidding from collectors around the world.

That Was Me

Born on 18 June 1942, Paul McCartney grew up in a musical household in the ever-changing port city of Liverpool. As a teen, McCartney taught himself the craft of songwriting and how to play the guitar and piano, which led to a career that has inspired countless musicians and entertained generations of fans.

From iconic Beatles performances at Liverpool's Cavern Club and on The Ed Sullivan Show to his memorable moments as a member of Wings and as a solo artist, the Liverpudlian is one of the most respected musicians in British history.

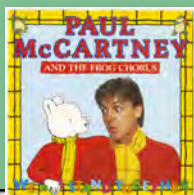

Now And Then

In 1996, it was announced that Paul McCartney had been conferred with a knighthood for his services to music. Two decades later, he was also appointed to the Order of the Companions of Honour. Today, he plays globally to sold-out venues and his latest studio album, McCartney III, reached number one in the UK in 2020.

In 2023, The Beatles shocked fans with the release of 'Now And Then', their long-awaited, final song. Created from an unreleased demo by John Lennon, it was their first UK number one single since 1969, bringing things full circle for The Beatles and demonstrating Paul McCartney's enduring legacy.

No More Lonely Nights

In 1984, McCartney returned to number one with 'Pipes of Peace' and he also memorably provided the soundtrack to the animated short film Rapport and the Frog Song.

Branching out as a solo artist, McCartney explored different styles of music, working with legends such as Johnny Cash, who McCartney credited as his inspiration. Since then, the Liverpudlian's strength to strength, producing has seen him perform with Kanye West and many others.

A Sound Collage

The 1990s saw Paul McCartney record alongside Martin 'Youth' Glover, a record producer and founding member of Killing Joke, in the experimental music duo The Fireman. Since 1993, they have produced three albums, with their musical output ranging from electronica to rock.

McCartney's more recent catalogue features other surprising additions, including several original songs for the soundtrack to the videogame Destiny. His influence can be felt across multiple genres, with his work being covered by a range of industry heavyweights, from Bruce Springsteen and Bob Dylan to Guns N' Roses and Beyoncé.

Additionally, he has been an active supporter of environmental conservation and sustainable development, founding The Prince's Rainforests Project in 2007. The Royal Mint

The Royal Mint, with its origins dating back over a thousand years, holds a significant place in the annals of coinage. It ranks as the United Kingdom's oldest continually operating company and the second oldest mint in the world. Its establishment can be traced to the reign of Alfred the Great in the late 9th century when a mint was set up in London. However, it was not until 1279 that The Royal Mint was officially recognized and granted its charter by King Edward I.

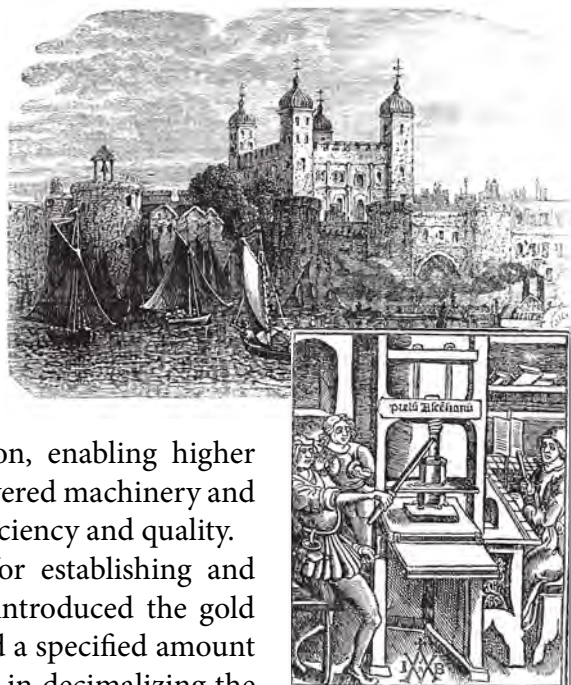

Initially located within the Tower of London, The Royal Mint played a crucial role in producing coins for the realm and maintaining the integrity of the currency. Over the centuries, it expanded and moved to various locations within London, including the Mint in the Tower, The Royal Mint Court, and the current state-of-the-art facility in South Wales.

Throughout its history, The Royal Mint has been at the forefront of coinage innovation. In the 16th century, the introduction of the screw press at the Mint revolutionized coin production, enabling higher volumes and greater consistency. Later, steam-powered machinery and advancements in metallurgy further enhanced efficiency and quality.

The Royal Mint has also been responsible for establishing and refining coin standards. The 1816 Coinage Act introduced the gold standard, which ensured that gold coins contained a specified amount of pure gold. In 1971, the Mint played a vital role in decimalizing the British currency, marking a significant milestone in the nation's monetary system.

In addition to producing circulating coins, The Royal Mint has a long tradition of crafting commemorative and ceremonial coins. These special issues celebrate important events, anniversaries, and national achievements. Notable examples include commemorative coins for the Olympics, royal weddings, and historical milestones.

Today, The Royal Mint continues to combine centuries-old craftsmanship with cutting-edge technology. It is renowned for its commitment to excellence, producing coins of exceptional quality and design. With its rich heritage, The Royal Mint remains a symbol of British numismatic expertise, with the legacy of a minting institution that has shaped the nation's currency for centuries.

The Production Team

Anne Jessopp, CEO of The Royal Mint. Since joining The Royal Mint in 2008, Anne Jessopp has held several positions on the Board, including HR Director and Director of Consumer, before stepping into the role of CEO in 2018—the first female in the 1,100 year history of The Royal Mint to do so. Spearheading the transformation of one of the United Kingdom’s oldest businesses, Anne’s leadership of The Royal Mint has seen her introduce an ambitious strategy to continue to grow the consumer facing divisions, helping to safeguard the business and employment for the future. As a result, The Royal Mint is now firmly delivering its strategy of reinvention, while retaining its unique heritage as The Original Maker of beautiful and authentic products and services. Also under Anne’s leadership, The Royal Mint has committed to becoming a leader in sustainable precious metals.

Daniel Thomas, Assay Master for King Charles III. Daniel Thomas was appointed as the King’s Assay Master in September 2023 following nearly a decade at The Royal Mint in other roles including Engineer, Technical Manager, Operations Manager and Head of Operations. As Assay Master, he emphasized that “Each coin is a celebration of His Majesty, King Charles III. We are committed to ensuring our nation’s coinage is underpinned by the quality, accuracy, and excellence for which The Royal Mint is famous.”

The Designers

Deborah Osborne and Andrew Ross (Osborne Ross). Osborne Ross is a London-based multi-disciplinary design studio run by partners Deborah Osborne and Andrew Ross. Formed in 2001, they have won many industry awards including a Design and Art Direction (D&AD) Gold award, two (D&AD) Silver awards, Design Week’s Best of Show, New York Art Directors Silver award, British Book Design award, and a third sector award for charity work. Prior to their work on this inspiring series for Paul McCartney, Osborne Ross also designed limited edition coins for The Royal Mint in 2022 that celebrated the Platinum Jubilee of Her Majesty the Queen. They have designed stamps for the Royal Mail and given lectures at Design and Art Direction and Ravensbourne College of Art.

Martin Jennings. Martin Jennings is a celebrated sculptor recognized for his representations of poets, writers, doctors, politicians, and others. Regarding his new effigy of King Charles III, Jennings remarked: “It is a privilege to sculpt the first official effigy of His Majesty and to receive his personal approval for the design. The portrait was sculpted from a photograph of The King and was inspired by the iconic effigies that have graced Britain’s coins over the centuries. It is the smallest work I have created, but it is humbling to know it will be seen and held by people around the world for centuries to come.”

Magnificent Silver 5 Kilo Coin Honoring Paul McCartney

Certificate of Authenticity #2 of 5

#1 Gifted to Paul, Only 4 Coins Available to Collectors

2024 Paul McCartney Silver 5 Kilogram Commemorative Coin. With Hand Signed Certificate of Authenticity #2 of 5. Colorized Gem Proof. 5 Kilograms of .999 Fine Silver in a stunning Proof finish with colorful resin accents. Accompanying this coin is Certificate of Authenticity #2 of only 5, with Certificate of Authenticity #1 gifted to Paul himself. It is surely one of the most desirable silver British coins produced in the 21st century.

While Paul McCartney has been universally lauded for his contributions to music and pop culture over the past seven decades, this is remarkably the very first time he has been celebrated on a coin from The Royal Mint. This is also the largest silver Proof coin produced as part of the Music Legends series. Throughout the process, The Royal Mint worked directly with Paul McCartney's production company, MPL Communications, and with Paul himself to bring this captivating rarity to life.

The colorful reverse was designed by Deborah Osborne and Andrew Ross of the London-based design consultancy Osborne Ross, and it features Paul's signature at the center with details from his psychedelic "Magic Piano" and iconic Höfner Violin bass surrounding. The enameling was hand-applied to the highest quality by The Royal Mint's artisans, making each one of these pieces effectively unique.

Complementing the innovative and colorful reverse is a truly regal portrait of His Majesty King Charles III on the obverse, designed by renowned British sculptor Martin Jennings.

Precisely 8 of these silver coins were originally struck, however, three were later inspected and melted as part of the historic Trial of the Pyx ceremony. One example was gifted to Paul McCartney himself, resulting in the net distribution of only these 4 pieces.

This historic commemorative is housed in a bespoke wooden case and is accompanied by a serialized Certificate of Authenticity that has been hand-signed by Paul. In addition, the winning bidder will receive a personal letter from Anne Jessopp, CEO of The Royal Mint. It represents an incomparable prize for a world-class collection of British coinage or music memorabilia.
